

Legal - Osteopathic Articulation / Osteopathic Spinal Manipulation

OMT Training ensures that all students are informed of the relevant legislation and takes no responsibility for students who do not follow that, osteopathic is not a protected term or title when describing techniques used or employed by a manual therapist.

Osteopathic Articulation is a UK trademarked logo - IPO Link

www.ipo.gov.uk/tmcase/Results/1/UK00003163607

Osteopathic Spinal Manipulation is a UK trademarked logo - IPO Link

www.ipo.gov.uk/tmcase/Results/1/UK00003172803

These courses are for the specific techniques of Osteopathic Articulation and Spinal Manipulation and are not a substitute for the degree program and do not qualify you as an Osteopath.

Under Section 32(1) of the Osteopaths Act 1993 it is an offence to infer or imply that you are an Osteopath if you have not carried out the relevant training and the following titles are prohibited to use:

Osteopath, Osteopathic practitioner, Osteopathic physician, Osteopathist, Osteotherapist, or any other kind of Osteopath.

Students who qualify in our courses must ensure that when describing themselves on their websites and in advertising literature that they are not implying that they are an Osteopath, but that they are trained in specific osteopathic techniques.

Example

John Smith – Sports Therapist

Techniques used:

Dry Needling

Osteopathic Spinal Manipulation

Osteopathic Articulation